Today’s Challenge

• Can peer support-based approaches help people at risk for major and multiple relapses and avoidable hospital/detox readmissions, incarceration, homelessness and suicide?

The power of peer support is in the quality and power of our relationships.
The Basis of our Relationships

- Fostering Hope
- Trusted, Safe Relationships
- Empathy, identification and example
- Respect and reliability
- Trauma informed: what happened vs. what’s wrong
Key Values

• Person driven and directed; in the passenger seat
• Honesty and Shared Accountability
• Dignity of Risk and Responsibility
• Power, Choice, Rights, Freedom
Key Practices

• We start where people are, both as to where they live and what they most want….and offer encouragement for people to define and move towards the goals and the life they seek

• We try to see the world through the eyes of the people we support, rather than viewing them through an illness, diagnosis and deficit based lens.

• We are respectful….and relentless.

“She talked to me. She talked straight at me. She’s the only one. She’s got a knack for going on the underlying thing and really getting at it. And I’ve never had anyone look me straight in the eye, and actually relate to somebody. And I love her for it.”

• Integrating health, mental health and substance use focused services and supports.
By the Numbers

- PEOPLE has directed the CIT training in the county, training over 400 police officers to date and enlisting them in a partnership.
- The Stabilization Center has seen over 1,000 people to date.
- Over 400 guests have been by police officers directly to the center, preventing avoidable arrests and ED visits.
- Preliminary outcomes show a 17% reduction in ED visits.

Protecting the Integrity of Peer Support

• Peers frequently work for subcontracted peer run agencies and are supervised by peers
• Peers who are embedded in traditional settings without peer supervision are at risk for co-optation.

• Coordinated Specialty Care for First Episode Psychosis

• Funded by the NYS Office of Mental Health and implemented by Columbia University Center for Practice Innovations (CPI)

• Guiding principles are of recovery, person-centered care, and shared decision making
Peer Specialists – OnTrackNY

• Peer Specialists offer living proof that people can and do emerge from psychosis and are able to resume, or perhaps begin, pursuing life goals

• The role is considered “embedded” in the system, working directly alongside a group of clinicians in a coordinated mental health team (Jones, 2015)

• Working as part of a team allows for productive synergy to take place between the clinical and peer roles, helping to support and define each other, while positively influencing one another’s perspectives and cultures.
Peer Specialist Role & Responsibilities

- Support program participants through direct engagement and through advocating for them in the context of the team

- Outreach/Engagement/Bridge Building
- Relationship Building
- Embracing Creative Narratives/ Non-traditional understandings of psychosis
- Co-Creating Support and Wellness Tools
- Influencing Team Culture
Outreach/Engagement/Bridge Building

- Individuals with the recent onset of psychosis are particularly high risk of disengagement from mental health services
  - Peers are often better able to forge working alliances early in the treatment process with clients who are most disengaged
  - Peers can engage participants outside of this clinical frame by using their personal experience with psychiatric diagnosis as a point of connection and understanding

Peer Specialists in OnTrackNY programs are involved in all aspects of community and participant outreach, engaging participants in services, and keeping clients connected to care.
Peer Support Activities

- Outreach and Recruitment

- Development of brochures, newsletters, websites, social media accounts and other informational materials

- Help build collaborative relationships between and among community agencies, services, and resources

- Organize community outings—connections to recovery community (HVN, the Icarus Project, Youth Power)

- Build collaborative relationships with existing peer-run organizations (PROs) and groups

- Collaborate with Supported Education and Employment Specialist
“Peer support relationships are mutual and reciprocal….

• …This can be very healing for people who have been in the patient or client role for a long time…In most mental health settings, clients are not encouraged to help each other or anyone else. In this sense the current popular term “consumer” seems apt. It conjures the image of a large mouth consuming and consuming without a hint that it would be possible to contribute something back. Socialization into being a consumer means that many people are denied the opportunity to discover they have something to offer to other people…It is healing to learn that one needs and is needed, cares and is cared for, and can receive as well as give.” - Pat Deegan
Mutuality continued

- Peers are not on team to help or try to “fix” program participants. Instead, focus is on mutuality and learning from one another.

- *Always some degree of power imbalance between Peer and participant
  - Documentation
  - Peer is paid position
  - Required to take steps if risk present
Multiple Frameworks for Thinking About Mental Illness & Psychosis

- Peers are familiar and comfortable with multiple frameworks for talking about one’s inner experiences and external realities.

- “Who am I?” is a question that all young people face.

- “Who am I and what can I become now that I have a diagnosis of psychosis?” is the more complicated question facing the young people in OnTrackNY.
Survivors of trauma are much more likely to experience psychosis than the general population (Varese et al., 2012, Read et al., 2014)

- Peers contribute to making the treatment setting a compassionate, trauma-informed environment

- Oppressive social forces such as racism, classism, and sexism may be very real factors in why a participant is having psychotic and other extreme experiences.

- Can be helpful to think about psychosis relationally: as something that exists between people, that is greatly affected by family dynamics and issues in the larger society (Seikkula, 2003)

- Peer’s primary role is to be an advocate: to voice the perspective and desires of a participant who might have difficulty voicing them on their own.
Finding what “living well” means to the participant

- Assists participants to identify which tools are helpful in their wellness toolbox
  - creative practices
  - alternative healing modalities
  - resources of traditional mental health treatment

- Identify internal resources and connections in community

- Develop concrete plans such as establishing a routine, following through with commitments and short and long-term goals

All in the interest of supporting participants to build rich, full and satisfying lives
Peer Specialists as “Innovative Disruptors”

• Peer Specialists are living proof that recovery is possible. Some clinical staff may feel challenged because they were trained to think of psychosis as a chronic illness that limited what program participants could expect from life.

• Peer Specialists disrupt the idea that sickness and health are separate domains by demonstrating that they can live well with mental health challenges or vulnerabilities.
  • When working alongside Peers, some clinical staff will find themselves asking difficult questions such as: “I spent years in therapy, does that make me a peer? I use psychiatric medicine myself, does that make me a peer?”

• Today Peer Specialists are an emerging workforce qualified to work, not by a license, but by the wisdom of the lived experience of recovery and certification. Sometimes this causes tension on clinical teams.
